I would say use the $3 figure per (Assumes a typical water bill is about $50 per month) household monthly bill which was estimated in 2014 and that we will update that number in 2016 once we have a final distribution plan determined.

John – See question below from LA Times reporter. What is your current projection? I know at one point you thought $2-3 per average ($50 per month) household bill...is that still accurate?

Thanks, Scott. for this morning and everything.

Could you provide me with one more figure? How much more would OCWD residential customers pay on average for their water once this is built? I see that stories about Carlsbad say 5% to 7%. Would that be correct for the HB plant as well?
